COMMON MARKET

BRITAIN'S decision to join the European Common Market involves a revolution in thinking. Down the centuries Britain has never quite accepted itself as part of Europe, looking outward to English-speaking nations of the world for its intimate associations.

This cosy isolation behind the English Channel is no longer tenable following the emergence of France, Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg into a powerful economic entity against which Britain cannot compete.

The objections which have so long deterred Britain from joining the European Common Market are fears for the Commonwealth trade and for home agriculture.

Price support

A DIVERGENCE to the Rome Treaty as it now stands would wreck the long established trade preferences which Britain now has with primary producers in the Commonwealth.

And the price support system which now underpins the prosperity of British agriculture would have to be modified under the treaty.

Another problem is the interests of Britain's six full partners in the European Free Trade Association (EFTA) which was formed as a counterweight to EEC but which lacks the same economic power.

The idea of association without membership is provided for under Article 238 of the Rome Treaty. Britain has toyed with this idea but decided it is not feasible.

M. Paul Henri Spaak of Belgium brought with him when he visited Britain clear indications that other EEC leaders are prepared to negotiate on treaty changes.

Commonwealth countries which have already made clear their vigorous objection to any step likely to undermine their preferential trade ties are jealously watching developments.

Political

ON the domestic political front, too, Mr Macmillan is facing opposition from groups in both the Labour and Conservative parties.

Various political groups fear the threat to British industry and working people through exposure to unrestricted competition from Continental producers.

And there is the viewpoint which deplores the concept of Britain abrogating a measure of political sovereignty as would eventually happen under the treaty.

Despite these objections, Mr Macmillan did not have great difficulty in persuading Parliament to accept his decision which is a tribute to his leadership.

The executive of the EEC will consider Britain's application today and although there will be initial complications, particularly in regard to the Commonwealth countries and the colonies, acceptance seems to be a foregone conclusion.

We can only hope now that the British delegates will be able to drive the hard bargain possible on behalf of the Commonwealth.

President Kennedy: We have no choice U.S. TO RESUME NUCLEAR TESTS

No danger of radioactive fallout

Washington, Sept. 5.

President Kennedy today ordered the resumption of laboratory and underground nuclear testing by the United States, beginning some time this month. He emphasised that the type of tests planned will produce no radioactive fallout.

"We have no other choice," Mr Kennedy said. "He acted after a series of conferences with ranking government and Congressional leaders and in the wake of the announcement of Russia's third atomic blast since last week.

Decision

Just before the White House announcement, the U.S. Government rushed word of its decision to the governments of Britain, France and West Germany.

Mr Kennedy consulted earlier with Republican as well as Democratic Congressional leaders.

Before ending the voluntary test moratorium, in effect since October, 1958, the President also met government atomic experts to examine the threat posed by the Soviet test resumption.

Then, in a verbal statement read to reporters by Press Secretary Mr Pierre Salinger, the President said:

"In view of the continued testing by the Soviet Government, I have today ordered the resumption of nuclear tests, in the laboratory and underground—with no fallout."

Adequate

White House Press Secretary Mr Pierre Salinger said the U.S. nuclear stockpile and its system for delivering the bombs was "entirely adequate" at present.

But he said it "is also true that important advances can be made by further scientific development."

Mr Salinger declined to say where the new US tests would be conducted, not even to the point of placing them on the US mainland. Most underground tests have been held in Nevada.

The Press Secretary also evaded most of the other

HER 101st

Perth, Sept. 5. Scottish-born Mrs Janet Drehorn, of Merkatoa, 350 miles north of Perth, spent her 101st birthday yesterday doing housework and entertaining callers.

Mrs Drehorn, who is in good health, was born in Glasgow and migrated to Australia in 1883.

Among congratulatory messages she received yesterday was a telegram from one of her relatives in Scotland—China Mail Special.

Tear-gas bombs hurled at W. Berliners

Berlin, Sept. 5.

East Berlin police hurled three tear-gas bombs tonight at a group of 10 West Berliners who had approached the sector border to speak to friends on the other side.

AIR CRASH IN JUNGLE

Addis Ababa, Sept. 5. An Ethiopian Airlines DC3 plane with 16 passengers and three crew members crashed today in jungle country east of Addis Ababa.

According to unconfirmed reports, one Ethiopian passenger is dead and several injured. Others are missing.

Among the missing passengers is W. Dale Fisher, Economic Officer of the U.S. Embassy.

Rescue planes were rushed to the scene.—UPI.

Under surveillance

Winston-Salem, Sept. 5. A peeping tom crept up to the window of a home here on Monday night and raised his head over the sill. He was promptly punched in the nose.

Officer John Glavin watched the unidentified man approach the window, sent his baton through the screen and knocked the intruder back. The man picked himself up and fled.

UPI initially figured

72; drowning, 7; planes, 3; miscellaneous, 8; total, 807.—UPI.

HIS TEETH WERE AT STAKE

Leicester, Sept. 5. Every time a No. 28 bus passed along Clarendon Park-road on Monday it slowed to a walk.

The driver looked out of his window.

The conductor peered from his platform.

On the fifth trip, conductor Michael Peers gave a shout and hopped off the bus.

From the gutter he picked up the dental upper plate he had coughed out earlier in the day.

"I've only had them six weeks and I'm not quite used to them," said Peers. "I'll be more careful when I cough in future."—UPI.

Funds for legal aid

Salisbury, Sept. 5. Some £2,000 have poured in to pay for the defense of a white Rhodesian alleged to have punched U.S. Under-Secretary of State for African Affairs Mr G. Mennen Williams, it was revealed today.

The Rhodesian has received a civil summons to appear in magistrate's court on a charge of common assault on Williams at Lusaka airport early last week.—UPI.

AFGHANISTAN SEVERS TIES

WITH PAKISTAN

Karachi, Sept. 5. Diplomatic relations between Pakistan and Afghanistan will be severed tomorrow.

Afghan Charge d'Affaires in been despatched, but the contents remain secret.

Afghanistan has also closed its borders with Pakistan and trucks carrying goods between the countries have been stopped at the border checkpost of Torkham.—AP.

Young lovers break court order

Edinburgh, Sept. 4. Two runaway lovers, breaking an order of a high court judge, married at a Register Office here today.

The couple are Michael McGuire, aged 19, and 17-year-old Linda McMillan and both of them, as a result of their action, face possible imprisonment as soon as they cross the border between Scotland and England.

Michael, an actor who has appeared in films and on television, is the son of Mr Frank McGuire and his wife, a London bus conductor, who attended the wedding.

Linda, daughter of Mr Hugh McMillan, a wealthy Cheam, Surrey, businessman, left home on August 8 and was made a ward of court later last month.

A young person under 21 who is made a ward of court cannot, for example, be removed from England without leave of the court.—China Mail Special.

GOULART LANDS IN BRASILIA

Brasilia, Sept. 5. Vice-President Joao Goulart arrived today to claim the figure-head Presidency of Brazil under a written guarantee issued by the Chiefs of the Armed Forces.

The big jet transport in which Mr Goulart made a 1,200-mile flight to Brasilia from Porto Alegre touched down here about 2235 GMT.—UPI.

2 BOYS VANISH INTO THIN AIR

Sydney, Sept. 5. Two young Sydney brothers have disappeared from their home at suburban Regent's Park.

The boys, Garry North, 9, and Anthony North, 7, were last seen playing near their home at 3 pm last Friday.

A senior police officer said today that fears were held for the boys' safety because:

• Only Anthony had been away from home before, and then only for three hours.

• The boys took no clothing with them.

• Although they had found a £25 note on golf links near their home on Friday morning, they left the money at home.

"They have just disappeared into thin air," the police officer said.—China Mail Special.

IN THE SWIM

Boston, Sept. 5. When two men jumped into the Charles River basin early today from the Harvard Bridge, police thought they might have a double suicide on their hands. The pair left all their clothes on the bridge.

But they turned out to be just a couple of nudists. Police arrested the pair—a country club employee and a waiter—on charges of swimming in a non-swimming area.—AP.

THEY GOT CAR SICK AT SEA

Dover, Sept. 5. An amphibious Volkswagen car in which two Britons attempted to "drive" across the English Channel was today reported here to be under tow.

The men in it were reported to be "very sick."

The car, crossing from France to Dover late this afternoon.—China Mail Special.

Bangkok, Sept. 6. Bangkok police yesterday arrested a gardener who confessed to the brutal killing of Princess Laksami Lanwan last Saturday, it was reported today.

The Serithai, a morning newspaper, said Bangkok police arrested Saeng Hemchand, 27, one of two gardeners in the Laksami Palace, last Monday, and that he confessed to having killed the Princess with the help of four friends.

He refused to say whether Washington had consulted London on the matter or whether the British Government's advice had been sought.—UPI.

The other gardener, Viraj Soongnern, 22, and Saeng are believed to be from the north-eastern part of the country.

Princess Laksami was found dead last Saturday, in the Laksami Vilas Palace, her body beaten and stabbed.—UPI.

Police are still looking for another gardener who is believed to have something to do with the killing.

The newspaper account did not give the motive for the killing. Police however said earlier that some valuables and US$4,000 worth of Thai currency were missing when the body of the Princess was found.

New York stocks decline

New York cotton market

New York, Sept. 5. Cotton futures today drifted indecisively over narrow limits in dull dealings.

Closing prices ruled three lower to 10 points higher. The market opened off five to up 15 points. New Orleans closed off four to up 10 points.

Commission house brokers were small buyers on balance while trade interests were buyers of December to July. New hedging supplied most of the contracts. Spot interests continued to transfer short hedges in October to December at 55 points difference.

Speculative interests continued to find things more interesting in grains and some of the other commodity markets.

Other traders awaited the government's second crop estimate of the season, scheduled for Friday. Some crop experts expected an "improvement over the 13,010,000 bales estimated a month ago.

The certified stock today showed a modest increase, totalling 89,131 bales plus 215 bales awaiting inspection and "microcount" test.—UPI.

World rubber market

New York, Sept. 5. Rex rubber futures today closed 10 to 35 points higher with sales of eight contracts.

Standard rubber closed 20 to 35 points higher with sales of five contracts.

Although dull, terminal prices strengthened in company with the higher foreign markets, but even in the advance the domestic market was still reported much below parity with world markets.

In the shipment market, inactivity was the rule, generally too high to interest local buyers. Locally, spot No. 1 RSS was quoted 30½ cents and current month 30½ cents a pound.

In London, the rubber market was slightly easier after steady No. 1 RSS spot 25½ to 25¾.

In Amsterdam, rubber market was steady today.—UPI.

New York, Sept. 5. Stocks eased and trading picked up in the final hours today as prospects dimmed for a peaceful settlement of the wage war.

Ford, Chrysler and General Motors dipped around a point each after GM turned down a union proposal to submit their differences to final and binding arbitration. The move also had side effects on other segments of the market, especially steels when U.S. Steel and Jones and Laughlin shed more than a point. Other blue chip features included American Telephone off three points, a point or so and Illinois up a point or so and Procter and Gamble ahead more than two.

Defense stocks generally weakened in last minute trading, although McDonnell Aircraft was strong on a large contract. IBM held a big gain but Beckman lost around five and Zenith lost its early gain.

Drug shares were widely mixed and fairly active.

Today's volume was 3,000,000 shares. Of a total 1,250 shares, 417 were higher and 622 lower.

American Exchange volume was 1,240,000 shares. Bonds volume amounted to $5,320,000.

China proposes joint ownership of Mt. Everest

Kathmandu, Sept. 5. China has proposed joint Sino-Nepali ownership of Mount Everest to settle the two countries' claims to the world's highest peak, informed observers said here today.

General Padma Bahadur Khetry, Nepal Defence Minister, who recently began talks on Everest with the Chinese Ambassador here, has said the discussions may be continued by King Mahendra when he visits Peking next month.—Reuter.

Father wanted to teach her a lesson'

New York, Sept. 5. A 19-year-old American brunette with a penchant for stowing away on Europe-bound ships, returned from Holland today after being put to work aboard a Dutch motorship to pay for her passage.

Marion Swab was labouring along with the 54-member crew of the Dutch motorship Sloterland when the vessel docked at Hoboken, New Jersey, this morning.

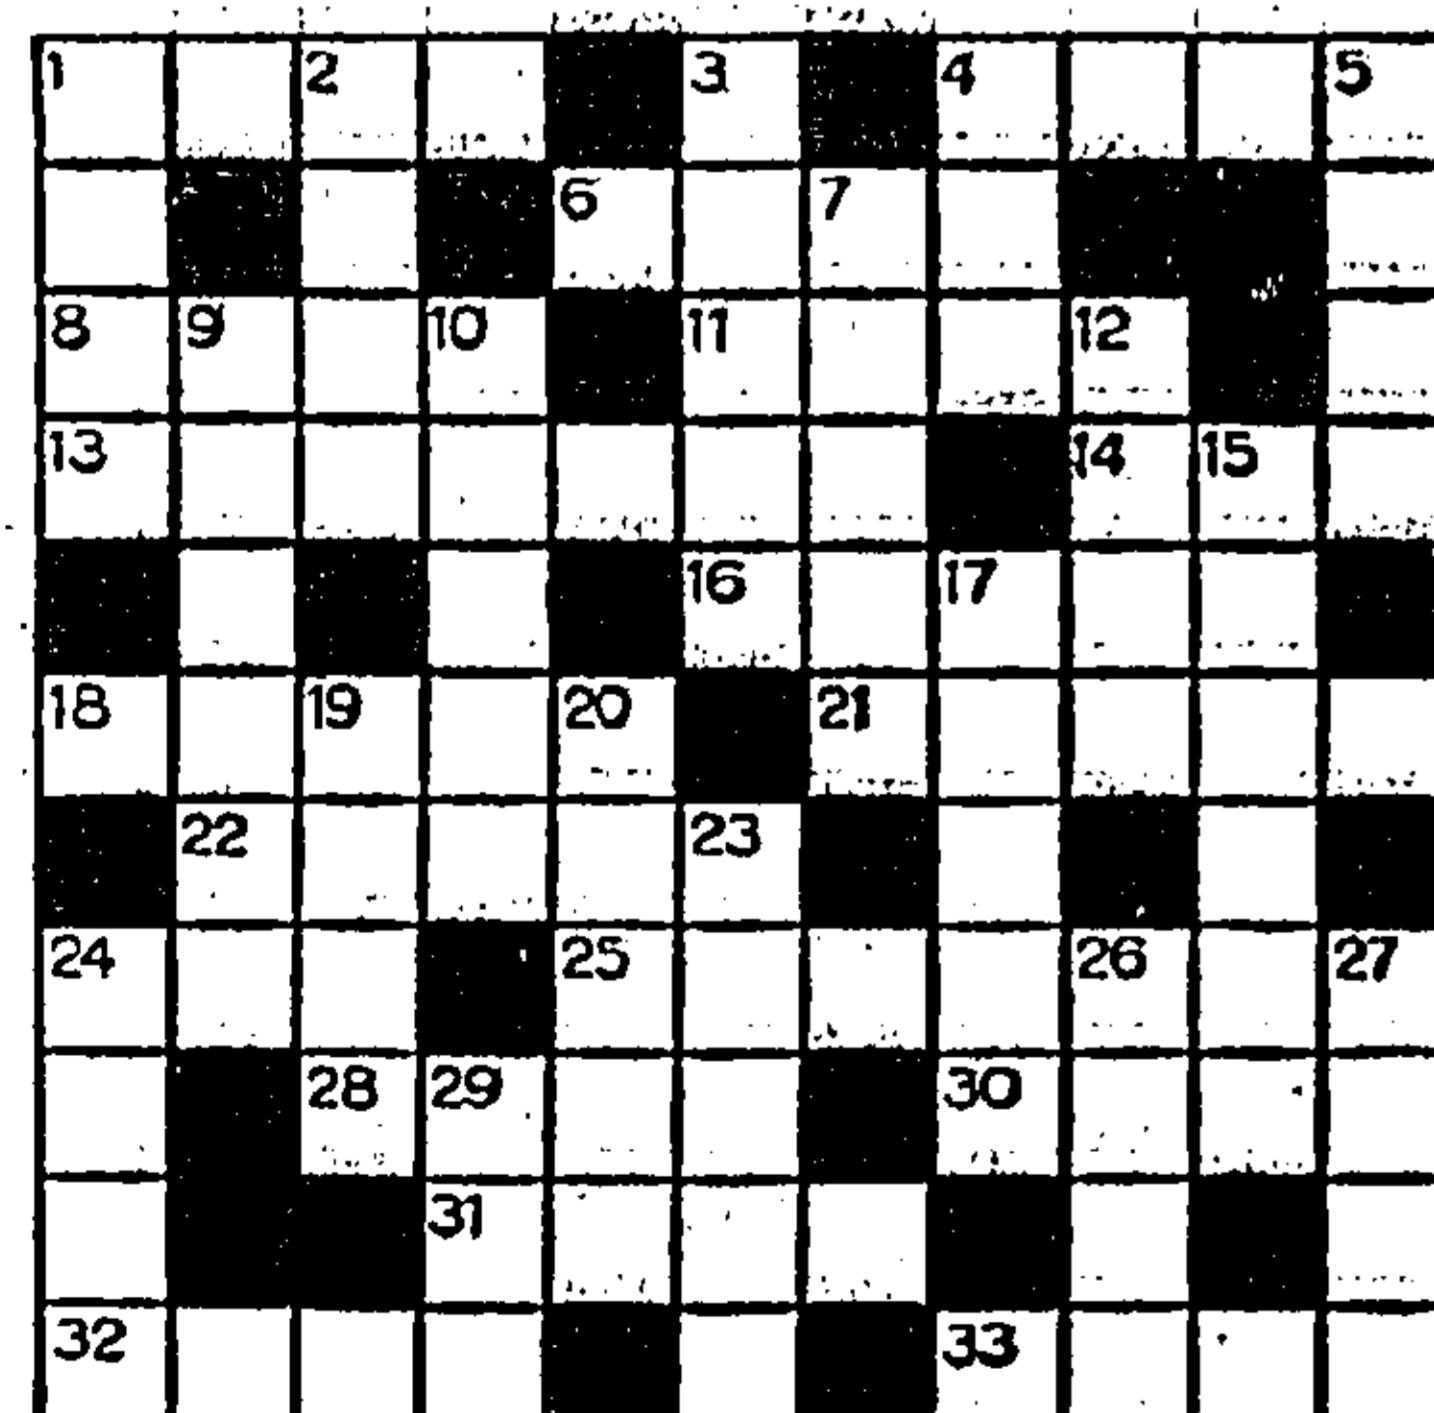

Waiting for her on the pier was her father, Henry, who as a man in the export-import business could have sent his daughter passage money after she was found to have stowed away aboard the liner Rotterdam after it sailed from New York on Aug. 18.

Swab refused to pay Marlon's fare "to teach her a lesson." He said he had paid for a round-trip ticket last year when she stowed away aboard the French liner Liberie and cabled from Le Havre for money.—AP.

Nepal, China sign aid agreement

Kathmandu, Sept. 5. Nepal and China signed an agreement here today providing for Chinese aid worth 35 million Nepalese rupees to this country. The aid comprises foreign exchange of 10 million rupees in cash and the rest in gifts of commodities, chiefly textiles, cement, newsprint, iron and steel.—Reuter.

KENNEDY WINS SUPPORT IN BATTLE FOR FUNDS

Group chairman willing to put back $175m

President Kennedy won a partial victory today in his battle to get Congress to restore funds slashed from the military assistance section of the Foreign Aid Bill by the House Appropriations Committee.

Rep. Otto E. Passman, (D-La.), Chairman of the Foreign Aid Appropriations Subcommittee, told the House that he was willing to put back $175 million of the $400 million cut from arms aid to US allies.

Passman, a long-time critic of foreign aid, said he reached the decision after a long labour day weekend during which he spent a lot of time "thinking over the crisis in the world." He said he also had talks with government officials.

'BIG MAN'

Rep. Robert L. F. Sikes, (D-Fla.) jumped to his feet to praise Passman, calling him a "big man in every sense of the word."

"This is one of the finest evidences of his statesmanship," Sikes declared.

Passman's action apparently headed off a major House fight over military aid. Kennedy and former President Dwight D. Eisenhower both had expressed dismay at the Committee's slashes. They said it would weaken the U.S. position in the current struggle with the Communists in Berlin and elsewhere.—UPI.

HOW PHILIP'S HOLIDAY WAS SPOILED

Bordeaux, Sept. 5. Philip Hotten came from Basildon, Essex, to visit his grandparents in La Couronne, southwest France, with visions of spending lazy days fishing and swimming.

But soon after his arrival, police knocked at the door, took 29-year-old Philip to the police station and then to a military barracks at Nansouty.

SURNAME

Although he does not speak a word of French he was told he would have to serve 2½ years military service in the French Army.

Tara Singh weakens FOLLOWER IS CHARGED WITH PLOT TO ASSASSINATE

Punjab police today arrested a member of Master Tara Singh's Akali Dal Party in connection with an alleged plot to assassinate the Punjab's Chief Minister, Mr Pratap Singh Kairon.

(Tara Singh, the 70-year-old Sikh leader, yesterday completed the third week of his "fast unto death" in support of Sikh demands for a Punjab-speaking state.)

Police said they found arms and ammunition and two bombs in the man's house which, he confessed, were given him by a member of the Akali Dal's working committee to assassinate Mr Kairon.

ANXIETY

Meanwhile, a medical bulletin issued today, said Tara Singh's condition was "causing growing anxiety" and that a "change for the worse may set in at any moment."

He has so far lost 23 pounds in weight and doctors today reported he was "growing weaker."

Police continued to round up Communists and "troublemakers" to prevent any "outbreak of violence in the event of Tara Singh's death."—Reuter.

Tony is lone student

London, Sept. 5. Seven-year-old Tony Kemp was the only child to report for lessons today when the new term began at his local village school near Cranleigh, Surrey.

The school, due to close after last term because only 25 children then attended, was kept open after protests by parents.

But Tony's mother, Mrs Anne Kemp, said today: "The other parents have been a complete let-down. They won the fight to keep the school open, but now they are sending their children elsewhere."—China Mail Special.

U.S. 'DEPLORES' ARREST

Spy charge denied

Washington, Sept. 5. A State Department spokesman today denied that the American student jailed on espionage charges by the Soviet Union for eight years was a spy.

He said the Department "deplores" the detention and trial of the American while he was held incommunicado.

The spokesman, Mr Joseph Renp, said Marvin William Makinen, of Sherborn-Road, Ashburnham, Massachusetts, was not a spy.

Told by a reporter that Soviet authorities had announced a "full confession" by the accused man, the spokesman said:

4 sentenced to death in Russia

Moscow, Sept. 5. Four persons have been sentenced to death, and five others, including a woman, given 15-year prison terms for attacking the militia station in the city of Alexandrov, 113 kilometers northeast of Moscow, it was learned today.

The newspaper "Vechernyaya Moskva" (Moscow Evening News) reported in today's issue that "criminal elements" had made an abortive attempt to interfere with militiamen who were making an arrest.

When the attempt failed, the group apparently tried to free some of its members from the militia station. Eight men and a woman were arrested following the attack.

The newspaper did not give the date of either the attack on the militia station or that of the trial. However, it said that six of the offenders had previous criminal records.—AFP.

Measles hits aborigines in Australia

Perth, Sept. 5. A measles epidemic has struck a tribe of aborigines living in the remote Warburton Ranges area 730 miles north-east of Perth.

Three native children are reported dead, and the Warburton Native Mission today was treating about 100 natives for the disease.

Arrangements were being made to rush emergency drugs and medicines to the mission from Kalgoorlie, 300 miles away, to combat the epidemic.

A native welfare officer said in Kalgoorlie that relief doctors and nurses would also be sent to the mission.—China Mail Special.

British newsletter from Peter Burgoine

The stern pattern set by the public schoolsSex, like television, is here to stay. And like television, you have just got to come to terms with it.

Britain is coming to terms with sex, but the complete breakthrough has still to be achieved. Pockets of resistance remain to be dealt with.

Like the Northamptonshire County Council.

In Northamptonshire, and thus under the protecting wing of the County Council, is the new town of Corby and its new grammar school.

The school is, whisper the word to save the blushes of the councillors, co-educational. It has got it.

Such an arrangement is not to the council's liking. They plan to segregate the children.

Not because there have been reports of anything untoward in the relationships between girl and boy pupils. Not the slightest trace, in fact, of any lust among the logicians.

Their attitude seems to stem from the we-got-on-all-right-without-mixed-schools-in - my point of view.

Separate lives

This pattern was set by the English public school system. What seems to be overlooked is that public schools followed rather than set the prevailing attitude of the country in relationships between the sexes.

This was that men and women lived almost entirely separate lives in which the points of contact were few and clearly defined.

So public schools, which prided themselves not only on academic education but on fitting a man for life—moulding character and bringing out qualities of leadership—were rigidly moralistic.

It was taught to respect women for their femininity but no more, dash it all. And as an outlet for any emotional feeling that might get pent up, there was always the sports field.

This Victorian outlook has changed as far as life in general is concerned. Women have been given the vote and have shown that their place in society is not confined to domestic affairs.

Progressive view

So the progressives argue—where better to learn how to live in a mixed society than at school? The classroom is not merely a place to learn mathematics and the rest. And even if there were, there seems no reason why a difference in physical make-up should bring segregation.

Taking the wider view that school is where the children are for play, in society, there is surely every reason why the place of preparation should be run on the basis of that society.

Says one of the masters at Corby, "Boys and girls have a civilising influence on one another." Co-education, he feels, makes the jobs of teachers easier.

Temptations? No sign of them at Corby. There, the feeling is that education has helped keep the youngsters on an even keel, es-

Demonstrators

Campaign chairman Canon Collins sought and was granted audience with the Soviet ambassador in London, who undertook to communicate the movement's views and a letter from Canon Collins to Mr Krushchev.

Then came the demonstrators who squatted in protest as near the British Embassy as they could. Over a hundred of them were loaded by persisting police into vans and driven to Kensington police station to be charged with obstruction.

It is not inconceivable that one day a bomb of the type which Mr Krushchev is going to test will land on the Kensington pavements where the protesters squat.

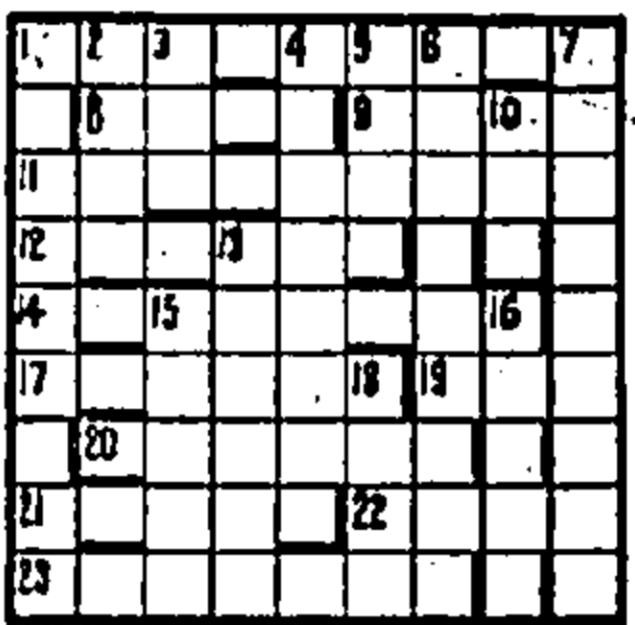

The duty, of course, had to be done to do their duty and remove them. But they were probably left reflecting that their lot can be a strange one, and in a strange world.

Mrs Violet Butler had a bad headache. So bad that she was forced to take to her bed. Still the headache got worse.

Then, as the advertisements say, came instant relief. It was brought by the postman—a pools winning cheque for £90,576. Said Mrs Butler when she picked up the cheque, "My headache has disappeared."

Now why don't the National Health authorities think of things like that?

'not bad'

Russians say

'Stewardettes'

wanted on luxury ship

London, Sept. 5. The Union Castle Line is advertising for 40 attractive waitresses to act as "stewardettes" on their 33,000-ton luxury ship Transvaal Castle now being built in Scotland for its South African run.

A spokesman said the girls would come from the 21 to 35 age group.

"We want them to be attractive and efficient and we are looking for a good class girl," he added.

"In a way, it is our answer to the airlines' stewardesses."

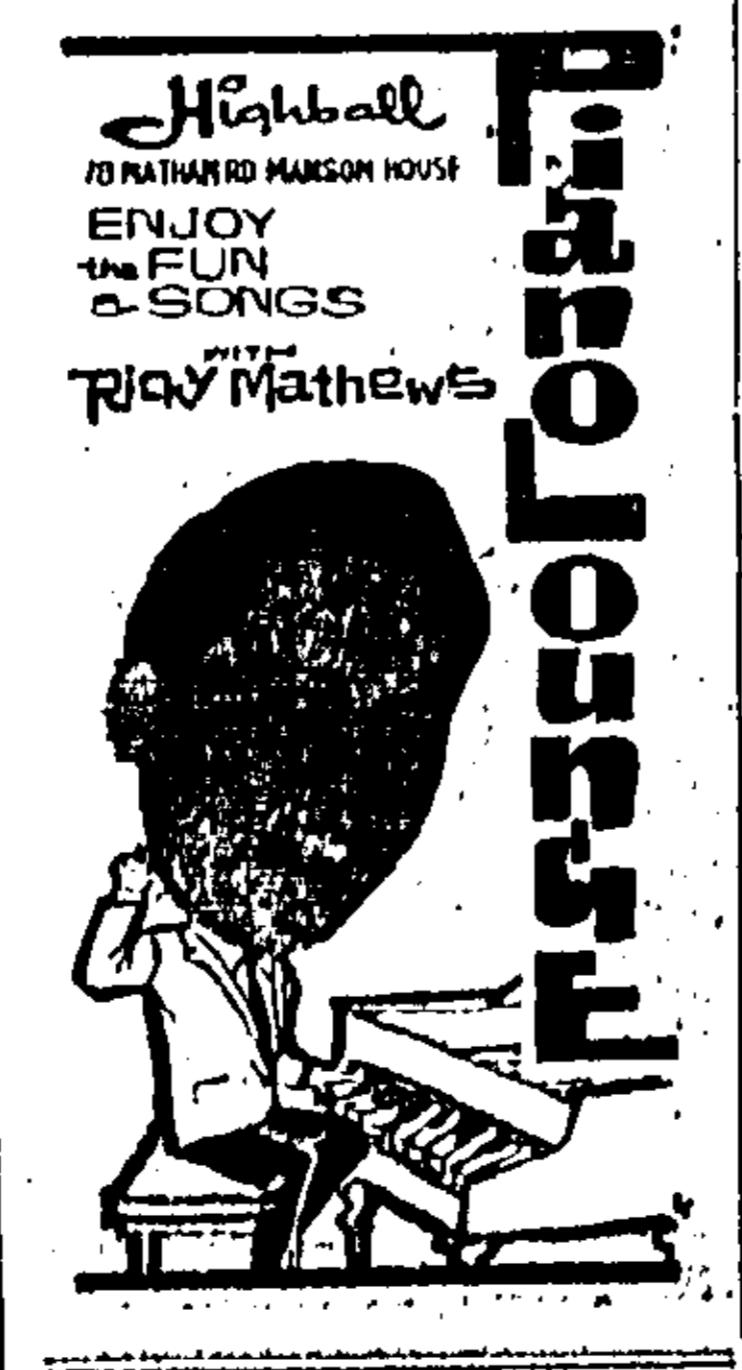

The break with the all-male tradition for ocean-going liners had come about because of the "tremendous shortage of stewardesses."

The stewardettes will earn £36/10 a month—and will have to join the National Union of Seamen.—Special.

Make best fathers

London, Sept. 5. Office and shop workers make the best fathers, delegates at the British Association For The Advancement of Science conference were told in Norwich today. Ninety per cent of them help their wives in looking after baby.

Professional and managerial workers are less helpful while unskilled workers are the least active, in looking after baby, stated two research psychologists Dr John Newson, and his wife Dr Elizabeth Newson.—China Mail Special.

GOOD EVENING, GOLDFINGER!
A KIND OF SOMETHING
NOTHING...

Farnborough, Sept. 5. The non-committal view of the six Russian flying experts who visited the Farnborough Air show today was "not bad." Among them was Mr Sergei Iluyshin, the famous designer of the "Il" range of aircraft, and Mr Oleg Antonov, another well-known designer. They were asked to comment on the annual display of British aircraft design, which other visitors have already called "weak" and "threadbare."

The Russian experts said they liked the Avro medium range turboprop airliner because of its "practical construction." They were interested in the long-medium range VC 10 jet airliner but what fascinated them was the vertical takeoff aircraft.

Mr Sergei Leschenko, Deputy Chairman of the Soviet State Committee for the Aircraft Industry, summed up the show as follows: "The aviation we have seen today is not bad. We think our aviation is not worse."

Supersonic

Mr Iluyshin said that Russia, like the West, was working on a supersonic airliner. It would be "very difficult" to forecast when one would be flying or whether it would fly at Mach 2 or 3, he said.

On reports that it was his son, a well-known Russian test pilot, who had, in fact, been the first man in space but had been injured in the process, Mr Iluyshin said:

"My son is a very good test pilot. He was returning to the airfield when he had a car crash and injured his legs and ribs.

"It is just imagination to say that he was the first man in space. He is not flying just now, but he soon hopes to be flying again," Mr Iluyshin said.

Today's weather was a big improvement on yesterday, when low cloud washed out the flying programme.

Apart from a few restrictions on vertical manoeuvres and on the ceiling, both the naval and Royal Air Force teams were able to stage their full planned displays.—Reuter.

Visas refused to youth

London, Sept. 5. Visas have been refused to a Japanese delegate and a Hungarian delegate to the International Conference of Student and Youth Organisations on Nuclear Disarmament, due to be opened in London next Monday, an official of the conference said tonight.

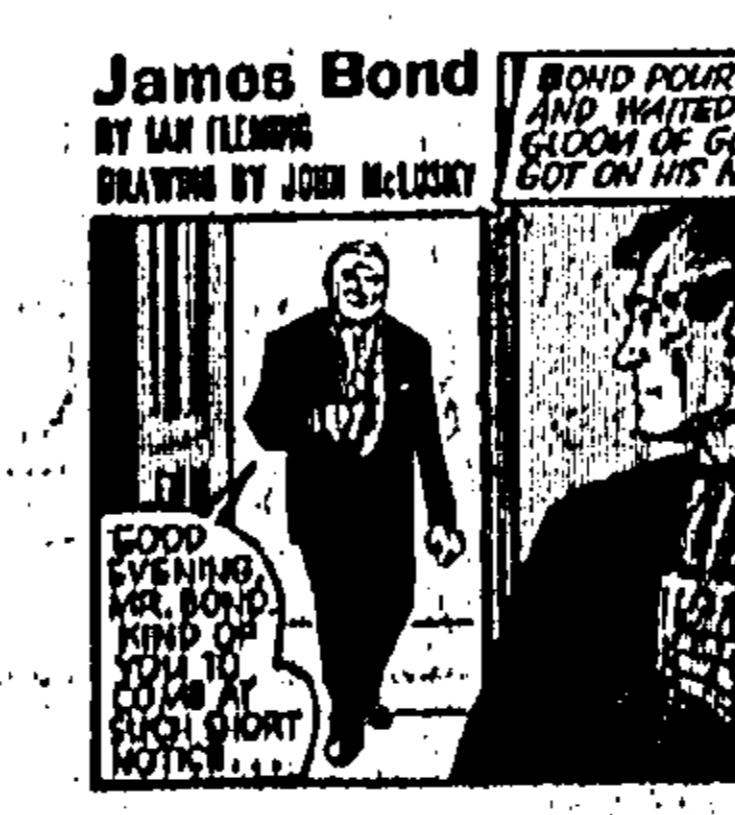

The conference organisers—representatives of Indian and French students and the British Youth and Students Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament—say they fear that the conference will have to be abandoned if visas are also refused to East German and Russian delegates.

The main topics due to be discussed at the conference, at which 40 countries were expected to be represented, are the Soviet Union's decision to resume nuclear tests.

At the last International conference at Easter, 1960, visas were refused to the Japanese and East German delegates. The Russian delegate was granted a visa.—Reuter.

'Britain short of high ability'

London, Sept. 5. Britain was not just short of scientists and technologists, but of high ability of almost every kind, a political economist told the British Association For The Advancement of Science in Norwich.

Professor C. E. Carter, Professor of Political Economy at Manchester University, said this deficiency was likely to become increasingly important and it was likely to limit the speed of economic and social change.

China

Professor Carter said many people regarded the supply of ability in England as being as ample as that of water but if the innate qualities required for high ability appeared equally often in all nations, then those countries whose social systems did not frustrate ability would have an advantage.

China could, in time, be expected "to produce ten times as many scientists of world repute as Britain," he said.—China Mail Special.

Accused of stealing painting

London, Sept. 5. Two men were remanded on bail today accused of stealing and maliciously damaging a nude painting worth £50 from London's National Gallery.

The painting, measuring about two feet six inches by two feet was a copy of "The Toilet Of Venus" by Velasquez. The original is also in the gallery.

The two men were Patrick Leonard Cheney, 21-year-old clerk, and Charles Nicholas Sebastian Richardson, 20-year-old barman.—China Mail Special.

Washington, Sept. 5. Mrs Jean McCarthy, 30-year-old widow of Senator Joseph McCarthy was quietly married here today to Civil Aeronautics Board member Mr. G. Joseph Minetti.

The Communist-hunting senator died in 1957. Mr. Minetti's first wife died some years ago.—Reuter.

New technique brings fresher
fish to Britain

London, Sept. 5. A bumper catch of nearly 21,000 stones of fish landed in Grimsby, England, yesterday by trawler at least seven days ahead of schedule has spelled success for an experiment designed to bring fresher fish to the British housewife.

The experiment involved a "pocket" fleet of five trawlers with one acting as carrier to get the early part of the catch to port before it could lose its freshness.

Adverse weather

The carrier, Northern Sky, docked after being at sea only 14 days and realised £0,320 for her catch, on the Grimsby fish market.

Her Skipper, William Woods, said the experiment of transferring catches of fish from one ship to another by nets off land had been carried out in adverse weather conditions of high winds and fog.

The new method, ensuring earlier deliveries of fish to British ports had "great possibilities," Skipper Woods said. It involved cooperation between a "pocket" fleet of five deep-sea trawlers owned by Northern Trawlers Limited.—China Mail Special.

DID THE MAN WHO STOLE THE GOYA... KNOW ABOUT THE MAN WHO ROBBED THE LOUVRE?

FIFTY years ago the world was astounded and appalled to learn that Leonardo da Vinci's masterpiece, the Mona Lisa, whose enigmatic smile had beguiled millions of admirers for centuries, had been stolen from the Louvre in Paris.

The discovery was made by Sergeant Poupardin early in the morning of August 22, 1911.

Patrolling the Gallery of Apollo he noticed, as he flung a casual backward glance on his way out, that the space normally occupied by the painting was completely blank.

Within seconds two hundred and fifty guards were searching frantically through the ancient palace which houses France's priceless art collection.

At last, on a shelf in a little-used staircase, they discovered the heavy, ornate frame and its glass cover. The actual picture was nowhere to be found.

SHOCKED

Their shocked incredulity is understandable. Security precautions had been thought to be perfect.

The framed picture weighed over a hundred pounds and, anyway, the painting itself, on a heavy pile of walnut four and a half feet square, could hardly have been snatched out.

Nevertheless, it had gone. The great Alphonse Bertillon—famous for his now discredited "anthropometric" system of measuring and classifying the physical features, including some crude finger-prints, of criminals—was called in.

With withering sarcasm he pointed out that the doorknob of the storage door was missing, and that it led into an open courtyard from which the street could be reached.

Both Jean Nicaise, the Sherlock Holmes of France, and Hamard, the chief of the Surete, reminded him with equal sarcasm that, because of his system being followed at the

Mona Lisa's double

Surely, the 760,000 imprints of eight thumbs provided no clue to the four thumb-prints on the glass—it happened to be the left thumb!

A world-wide investigation followed. A Chicago art collector was suspected of having it stolen for his private enjoyment.

The picture was reported to have turned up in more than a dozen capitals. But the picture was not recovered.

The sensation was forgotten until two years later.

In November, 1913, Alfredo Geri, an art dealer in Florence, received a letter from Paris offering to sell him the original Mona Lisa.

A CRANK?

He thought that the writer, Vincenzo Leonard, was certainly a crank, but thought it worth while consulting his friend Giovanni Poggi, curator of the famous Uffizi Gallery in Florence.

"You might as well see it," was Poggi's advice, "but it's bound to be a forgery."

On December 10 the doorman of Geri's art shop clanged and a furtive, haggard young man appeared. "The picture's at my hotel," he announced, "and I want 50,000 francs for it."

The art dealer and the curator went to the man's dowdy hotel room.

Distraught and weeping, the young man unwrapped a wooden panel from its velvet covering. Tenderly he kissed the portrait and turned to the two men, his eyes blazing. "Take it!" he screamed. "Take it! I can't starve any more!"

Poggi shot an apprehensive glance at Geri and said: "I told you he was mad." Prodding his magnifying glass, and holding the picture for comparison, he inspected the picture minutely.

"It's incredible," he said. "It is the Mona Lisa. There's no doubt about it."

The young man, sobbing hysterically, was arrested for theft. The picture was taken through crowded streets, the people cheering and throwing flowers at it, to the Uffizi Gallery, where it had occupied a place of honour centuries ago, to be on exhibition once again.

On the last day of showing, too, huge crowds, indignant at being denied a last glimpse, broke through the armed guard and stormed the gallery, causing final and damage.

Finally, escorted by respondent soldiers in mud-stained plumes and with drawn sabres, the portrait was restored to its place in the Louvre—but the drama of Vincenzo Perrugia had proved an assumed name was soon to have Parisians shedding sentimental tears. An amazing love story unfolded.

Perrugia, sitting one day in a Paris cafe, had espied a beautiful young woman who looked like the living image of da Vinci's famous portrait, which he himself knew so well because, ever since he had been a boy, he had been longing to sell it.

For two years afterwards he had lived with the Mona Lisa in his room near the Louvre. Only when desperate for money did he try to sell it.

Within seconds

250 guards were searching frantically through the ancient palace which houses France's priceless art collection.

since a child, it had exercised a fascination over him.

Her warm, enigmatic smile—the same immortal smile—had changed to terror, however, as she was seen in argument with a swarthy young man. She rose and made to leave but in a flash he sprang after her, stabbing her with a knife.

As the assailant fled from the cafe Perrugia was at her side, tending to her wound. He lifted her in his arms and took her to his home, oblivious of the tumult, murmuring, "Mona Lisa, Mona Lisa. . . ."

The sentimental jurists wept openly. His tender love for Matilde was fully corroborated. So, too, was her uncanny resemblance to the stolen picture, confirmed by photographs.

The sentence was a comparatively light one, although he had been in custody for more than a year; a mere 380 days' imprisonment. Released from prison early in 1916, Perrugia was tired and utterly dispirited.

"The Mona Lisa has been the destruction of me," he told a fellow-prisoner immediately before he left the prison. "yet it has been the whole theme of my life. Without Matilde I have nothing left to live for."

In the morning most of the prison doors closed behind him. He disappeared, never to be seen or heard of again.

WHITEWASH—
AS PANZERS
PARADE IN PEMBROKE

by Clive Graham

A PALE blue booklet stressing that the German High Command and its forces were in no way to blame for Hitler's war and were infamously treated by the Allies after the surrender has been issued in English by the German Embassy in London.

Its purpose is to smooth the way for the German Panzers now in Pembrokeshire.

The booklet blames the Allies for their stupidity in disbanding what remained of the German Army at the war's end because it was obviously needed to stem further Russian advances.

In prison

The Allies are openly accused of using illegal methods to try German military patriots as war criminals. It even accuses them of taking away the livelihood of the German professional soldiers by disbanding the forces.

The booklet, which is a specially selected 37-page extract from a much bigger propaganda document called "Germany Reports," states: "After the armistice millions of soldiers in the East and the West were kept in imprisonment contrary to law."

It goes on: "At Nuremberg and elsewhere, commanding officers and other military men were sentenced following countless trials in Allied military courts."

For those who are too young to remember or those who have forgotten let us name some of these ill-used commanding officers of the Third Reich.

The military leaders convicted of war crimes at Nuremberg were Hermann Goering, former chief of the Luftwaffe who escaped hanging by committing suicide, Field-Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, and General Alfred Jodl, both hanged for crimes against humanity. Admiral Raeder, Commander of the German Navy which sank liners without warning, and Admiral Doenitz, the U-boat chief, both imprisoned.

Bomb plot

The German propaganda chief claims that the Allies should have realized by July 1944, in the interest that the German soldier is something quite different from a Nazi. That was the date of the abortive bomb-in-the-briefcase plot to assassinate Hitler.

What the booklet does not point out is that the few generals involved took action only because they believed Hitler was losing the war. Until then they had carried out all his demands.

If July 1944 was the latest the Allies should have realised the sterling worth of German "solidarity," what was the earliest? The destruction of defenceless Rotterdam in 1940? The execution of the escaped R.A.F. prisoners from Stalag Luft III in April 1944?

Or should they perhaps have waited for the destruction of the Warsaw Ghetto and the mass extermination of the Jews there in August 1942—a month after the bomb plot?

The booklet quotes a statement by Dr Adenauer in 1951 when he affirmed: "No one must blame the professional soldiers on account of their former activity."

"Apart from the activists and those who profited from the National Socialist regime, the chapter of the collective guilt of the militarists must be ended once and for all," he said.

Belief

Only Hitler is to be blamed—one man driving the whole unwilling German nation. What about the thousands of Sled Hellers who turned up at the Nuremberg rallies?

The truth is that until Germany began to be defeated most Germans believed they were profiting from Nazi rule.

This propaganda booklet will fail to impress even those Britons who believe the Germans should now be armed against the Communist menace, and to glorify the Russians extra ammunition in their propaganda war over Berlin.

For here is official proof that the Germans believe they need feel no blame for the devastation and despair they caused from the moment they marched into Poland.—London Express Service.

BRITAIN'S
SUPERSONIC
SCRAPYARD
ONLY THE LIGHTNINGS
ARE LEFT

By Chapman Pincher

THE R.A.F.'s Lightning fighter will be the only British supersonic plane on display when the aircraft industry opens its shop-window to foreign customers at the Farnborough Air Show.

It is a superb machine but dwarfed by the armadas of supersonic fighters and bombers shown at the recent Russian air show in Moscow and by the Americans at their flight displays.

Why is Britain, which pioneered the jet-engine, so far behind that the possibilities of export orders for jet-combat planes have never been thin?

The root cause, according to the authoritative "R.A.F. Fighting Review," is Government stupidity in ordering a succession of supersonic planes and then, after spending millions on them, consigning them to the scrapyard.

Money lost

Air expert William Green lists at least five British supersonic combat planes which could have been earning foreign money now—the Hawker P.1083 and P.1121, Avro 720, Supermarine 543, and Saunders-Roe SR.177.

Ever since the war the Government has been chicken-hearted about military aircraft. When test pilots who had survived dozens of dog-fights wanted to give Britain the supersonic lead by crashing new planes through the "sound-barrier" Government experts ruled that it was too dangerous.

The Government has lacked the courage either to cut Blue Streak's throat or give it the real boost to get it moving.

Now, limping along as a possible launcher for a European satellite, it has no hope of serving that purpose before 1965 when it will be five years out of date.

The Government abandoned Dr. Barnes Wallis's ingenious project and starts up some new ones.

The TSR.2 low-level bomber and P.1127 vertical take-off fighter are brilliant new British ideas showing great promise for overseas sales if they can be produced quickly.

The only way the Government can leap the supersonic gap it has created by its past blunders is by putting as much as possible behind these projects and starts up some new ones.

Questions

PUT a check mark in front of the statements which are TRUE about:

1. Your Hair

(A) Never brush hair that has been wavy because the waves will come out and all that expense and trouble will be wasted.
(B) Girls with delicate complexions and light blonde hair ought to wear vivid colours as contrast.

2. Your Eyes

(A) When shaping eyebrows, always pluck them from underneath, never from the top.
(B) Girls who use eye shadow should never leave the make-up table without putting some on the lower as well as the upper lids.

3. Your Nails

(A) It's best to apply nail polish near a radiator to make it set more quickly and smoothly.
(B) White spots in the nails cannot be prevented. They're like freckles—some have 'em, some don't.

4. Your fragrance

(A) Perfume is the strongest type of fragrance. Next comes toilet water, then cologne.
(B) Best spots to put perfume are finger tips, ear tops, chin and centre of forehead.

5. Your clothes

(A) A short or hip-length jacket will make a woman seem shorter.
(B) A dress with horizontal curved lines or bands will make thin girl seem even thinner.

6. Underline the correct definition:

(A) A boutique is (1) a French beauty parlour, (2) shoe store, (3) accessories shop, (4) sidewalk flower stand.
(B) Jersey is (1) a corded fabric, (2) knitted fabric, (3) lace weave, (4) sheer, fine weave.

7. Four of the following are famous makers of fashionable clothes for women and four are not. Who are not?
Maisonneuve, Matelotier, Beluge, Chanel, Escoffier, Balenciaga, Dali, de Givency.

8. Do you know what type of hair-do is best for a specific shape of face? Match facial types at left with coiffures that ought to be used?

Long and slender

round oval fringe of bangs higher hair-do, ears exposed.

9. "Happiness" has been called woman's greatest figure problem, but much can be done by wearing the right clothes. Three of the following accentuate large hips, three do not. Separate the do's from the don'ts.

short jackets
loose garments
shiny materials
loose blouses broad lapels light coloured skirts.

10. (A) Does a woman whose chin recedes look better in a beret or (B) a wide hat?

by LESTER DAVID

(B) Does a woman with a heavy jawline look better in a tiny off-the-face hat, or (2) a hat with an irregular top?

Answers

1. (A) False. Brushing increases elasticity and springiness of the hair. Brush daily for scalp health whether hair has been wavy or not.

(B) False. Vivid colours are too overpowering for light blonde. Pastel shades are more flattering.

2. (A) True.
(B) False. Shadowing lower lids will make eyes seem puffy and bagsy.

3. (A) False. Nail enamel dries too quickly near heat, causing bubbles. Let the polish set naturally. It's a good idea to apply it a half-hour before bedtime, allowing enamel to set while you sleep.

(B) False. White spots result from injury to the nail matrix. One cause: using the sharp point of a file to clean under the nails. Use an orange stick.

4. (A) True. It's important to know the difference because the stronger the fragrance, the less you should use.
(B) False. Best are the pulse spots—inside wrists, elbows, throat, temple, behind ears. The Fragrance Foundation reports that the beating pulse will warm the scent and keep it alive.

5. (A) False. It will make her seem taller.
(B) False. They supply roundness to a figure.

6. (A) accessories shop;
(B) milliner.

7. Malsonneuve founded Montreal, Beluge is a whale, Escoffier was a chef and Dali is an artist.

8. Long and slender—fringe of bangs; round—higher hairdos; oval—ringlets.

9. Bad for happiness: shiny materials, light coloured skirts, short jackets. Good for happiness: looser garments, gay coloured blouse, broad lapels.

10. (A) beret; (B) hat with an irregular top.

Scoring

Each of the questions counts ten points. Most are in two parts, so count five for each part. Where more than two answers are called for, divide the points equally. Here's what your score indicates: 0 to 55—for you, fashion is just spinach 60 to 75—you're an up-to-date lady of fashion 80 to 100—no wonder you're so beautiful!

ORGANDIE FOR SUMMER EVENINGS

The Christian Dior model named after the perfume "Miss Dior", a short white organdie dress stated to be the original of the identical dresses worn recently at the Moscow film festival by Elizabeth Taylor and Gina Lollobrigida.

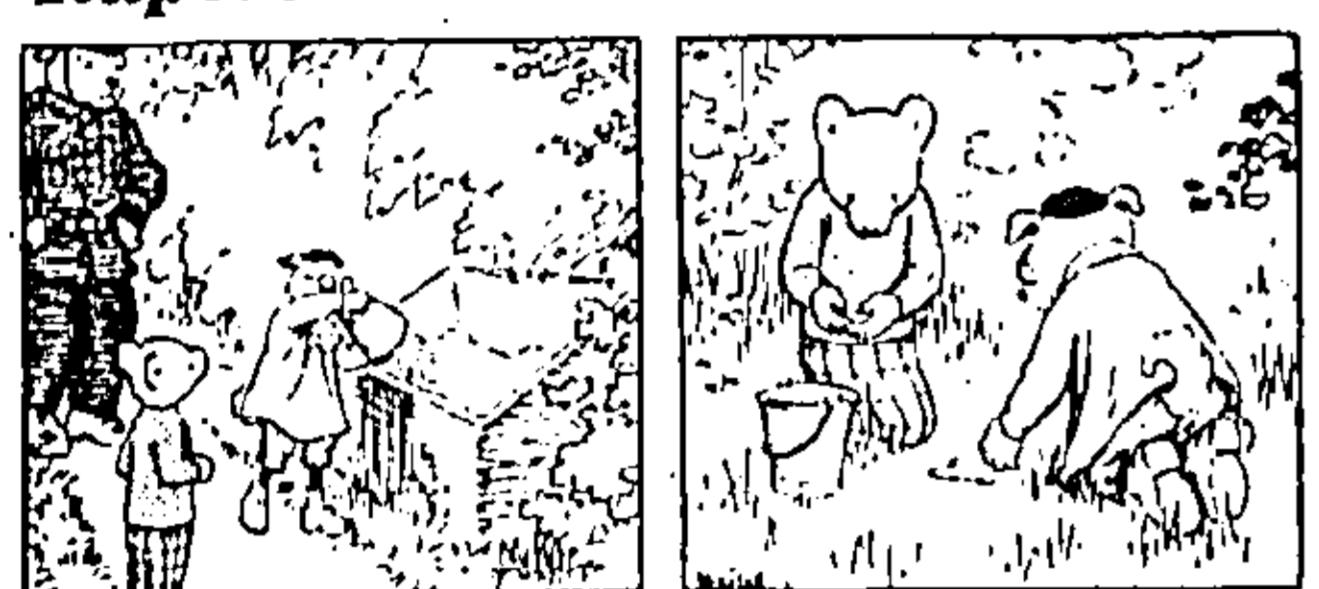

ROSES FOR SMART LIVING

Roses dominate this eye-catching hat in palest green silk chiffon. Pale green blooms decorate the pleated crown and there is a tiny rosebud on top to add the finishing touch.

Punch's Grandfather

—He Invented Smiles And Laughter And Cheer—

By MAX TRELL

"MY grandfather was a famous inventor," Mr Punch was saying to Knarf and Handi, the Shadow Children with the Turned-Around Names. "His name was Punchinello. And he had grey hair and a long grey beard."

Knarf and Handi asked Mr Punch what his Grandfather Punchinello had invented.

"He invented lots of things," said Mr Punch. "Take punching bags, for instance. They were called punching bags because his name was Punchinello."

Mr Punch smiled and explained that a punching bag was a sort of large ball which hung down by a cord from overhead and which swung back and forth when you punched it.

"Why did you punch it?" asked Teddy.

"Mr Punch said you punched a punching bag because it was good exercise."

"My Grandfather invented the punching bag to make people's arms stronger," Mr Punch said.

Mr Punch said his Grandfather also invented the punch bowl.

Neither Knarf nor Handi nor the Stuffed Bear could guess what a punch bowl was.

So Mr Punch explained that a punch bowl was for punch, which was a drink like lemonade or orangeade.

A clown?

"And a punch bowl," said Mr Punch, "was for keeping the punch in. But the best thing that Grandfather Punchinello invented was the Punch and Judy Show."

Knarf and Handi and Teddy didn't have to be told what a Punch and Judy Show was.

"But I ought to tell you," Mr Punch went on, "that it came about that Grandfather Punchinello invented the Punch and Judy Show. He worked in a circus."

Handi suddenly grew excited.

"Was he a clown?" she cried.

"Now how did you guess?" asked Mr Punch. "That's exactly what he was! He was the Cloddy Clown. In the world of make-believe he had a face. The one thing he wanted to do was to make everyone happy. He wanted to make them feel good."

"Everybody is happy," said Teddy. "I'm happy. Aren't you happy, Knarf?"

"Sure, I'm happy," answered Knarf.

"And aren't you happy?"

Teddy asked Handi.

Grandfather Punchinello
Invented Punch and Judy Show.

"I'm happy," said Handi. Mr Punch said he was also happy.

Everyone's happy

"There, you see," said Teddy to Mr Punch, "everyone is happy."

Mr Punch shook his head.

"That isn't what Grandfather Punchinello found out," he said. "Lots of times he saw that people didn't laugh or even smile. Try as he would—and he was a wonderful clown—he couldn't make them feel good. And then he invented the Punch and Judy Show. He invented it for children."

"Why did he invent it for children?" Handi wanted to know.

"Ah, that was the thing!" said Mr Punch. "Grandfather Punchinello said that if you made children happy and they walked around with smiles on their faces and laughter in their voices and with good cheer in everything that they did, everyone who saw them would be happy and smiling and cheerful, too."

Handi suddenly grew excited.

"Was he a clown?" she cried.

"Now how did you guess?" asked Mr Punch. "That's exactly what he was! He was the Cloddy Clown. In the world of make-believe he had a face. The one thing he wanted to do was to make everyone happy. He wanted to make them feel good."

"Everybody is happy," said Teddy. "I'm happy. Aren't you happy, Knarf?"

"Sure, I'm happy," answered Knarf.

"And aren't you happy?"

Teddy asked Handi.

Knarf and Teddy said that to see Punch and the Policeman and the Dragon all got in a fight and fall down a flight of stairs.

"They shouldn't really do that," said Handi. "But it's funny just the same."

Mr Punch was smiling as he thought of his old Grandfather Punchinello.

"I think he was the finest inventor in the whole world," Mr Punch kept saying.

"I think he was the finest inventor in the whole world," Mr Punch kept saying.

"Just imagine inventing smiles and laughter and good cheer."

Yorkshire beat champions Hampshire to finish up as runners-up

London, Sept. 5. Yorkshire, last year's County Cricket champions, beat Hampshire, the 1961 winners of the title, today and clinched second place in this year's final table.

With Middlesex gaining 14 points from their defeat of Gloucestershire, Yorkshire had to beat Hampshire to finish runners-up. Great bowling by off-spinner Ray Illingworth, who took 12 wickets for 102 in the match, enabled them to win by 58 runs.

A Yorkshire declaration set Hampshire to get 245 in 200 minutes for victory. Against Hampshire's last experiment of the ball-affected pitch, and West Indian Roy Marshall was able to stay long. Marshall need to his century in two hours 20 minutes, hitting a six, a five and 16 fours, but when he had made 109, he was run out and Illingworth subsisted.

Illingworth's second innings analysis was five wickets for 63 runs.

Middlesex third

The victory gave Yorkshire an average of 7.81 points, compared with Hampshire's winning 8.37. Middlesex were third in the table with 7.64.

Off-spinner Fred Titmus played the biggest part in Middlesex's win over Gloucestershire by 152 runs. Helped by a damp pitch, he took six wickets for 80 runs.

Gloucestershire, needing 282 to win today with seven wickets left, never looked like reaching the target. John Mortimore hit out bravely, collecting three sixes and four fours in a belligerent 58, and Arthur Milton made 47 in three hours, but there was no support for them.

Norman Gifford, the 21-year-old left-arm spinner, took seven wickets for 37 runs, the best bowling return of his career, in helping Worcestershire beat Sussex by 120 runs. Receiving some assistance from a wearng wicket, he deceived the batsmen with his accurate length and

Worcester fourth

Worcestershire had their most successful season ever, winning 16 matches and finishing fourth in the table with 7.00 points.

Gloucestershire were fifth with 5.84 points and Essex were sixth with the same number of points and the same average, but one less.

Kent, set to make 322 at a run a minute to beat Lancashire, had made a promising start when rain caused the abandonment of the match after only the pre-lunch session. Bob Wilson hit two sixes and five fours in 46. Peter Richardson had eight fours in his 41 and Arthur Phibey was unbeaten for 39. —Reuter.

Results

Results of today's matches were:

At Hove: Worcestershire by 120 runs. Sussex 278 and 140; Sussex 185 and 133 (J. Parke 47, N. Gifford seven for 37); Worcestershire 14 points.

At Lord's: Middlesex beat Gloucestershire by 152 runs; Middlesex 222 and 240 for seven declared. Gloucestershire 100 and 210 (C. Milton 47, J. Mortimore 58, F. Titmus six for 80); Middlesex 14 points.

At Blackpool: Match abandoned because of rain. Lancashire 254 and 199 for three (P. Richardson 41, R. Wilson 40); Lancashire four points.

At Birmingham: Yorkshire beat Hampshire by 58 runs. Yorkshire 238 for seven declared and 116 for three declared (F. Truman 51 not out); Hampshire 160 (R. Illingworth seven for 39) and 146 (R. Marshall 109, R. Illingworth five for 63); Yorkshire 12 points.

At Scarborough: Players beat Gentlemen by 54 runs. Players 317 and 143 for six declared (M. Hallam 42); Gentlemen 261 and 195 (M. Smith 43, J. Savage five for 78). —Reuter.

Their selection, and the presentation of large silver trophies to them and the U.S. track and field team, were made at colourful closing ceremonies at Ramat Gan Stadium.

Herman captured three gold medals, two silver medals and one bronze. Miss Bergman, a 20-year-old Brunel school teacher, earned two gold and two silver medals. The United States received the trophy for having won the most gold medals, 58.

Formal closing

A crowd of 40,000, who gathered in the cement and sand stadium, also heard an address by Premier David Ben-Gurion and witnessed exhibitions by two American athletes—John Thomas in the high jump and Olympic decathlon champion Rafer Johnson in the discus and hammer.

The Sixth Maccabiah drew 1,100 Jewish athletes from 28 nations around the world. The games were formally closed by Britain's Lord Nathan, Honorary President of the World Maccabiah Union.

Medals also were presented to Alan Cowen of Britain, Yaakov Daniloff of Israel and Frank Jenkins of South Africa, who finished 1-2-3 in an 800-metre exhibition race.

Although the Games were formally closed, there remained some unfinished business.

Irael's international soccer team thrilled the fans by holding Juventus of Italy to a 3-3 tie. The score was 2-2 at half-time. The soccer championship of the Games will be decided tomorrow when Britain, leading with four points, meets South Africa, and Israel plays Switzerland. —AP.

Aston Villa become first Football League Cup winners

Birmingham, Sept. 5. Aston Villa became the first holders of the English Football League Cup, which was launched last season, when they beat Rotherham United 3-0 at Villa Park here tonight in the second leg of the final. They won the trophy on an aggregate of 3-2.

Both legs of the final had been held over from last May until the current English football season started.

Aston Villa, who have won the English Football League Cup for the record number of seven times, were determined to be the first winners of this new trophy, but had to fight tremendously hard tonight, and the game went into extra-time.

Facing a two goal deficit from the first leg, Aston Villa attacked from the start but could not score until Alan O'Neill netted in the 67th minute.

Two minutes later Harry Burrows got a second goal to make the score 2-2 and there was no further scoring before the 90 minutes was completed.

Peter McPortland scored Aston Villa's third goal 11 minutes from the end of extra-time.

The winners had a fight in the closing minutes when a Keith Hambridge drive for Rotherham was headed off the line. —Reuter.

Points win for Dave Charnley

London, Sept. 5. Dave Charnley, the British lightweight champion and No. 1 challenger for Joe Brown's world title, easily outpointed American Len Matthews over 10 rounds before a crowd of about 9,000 at London's indoor Wembley Stadium tonight.

Charnley's victory over Matthews, the eighth-ranked world challenger, moved the 26-year-old Briton into a possible third bout for the world title against Brown.

Brown twice has beaten Charnley—the last time in London by only a hair's breadth. Charnley weighed 137 pounds and Matthews 134½ pounds.

NO KNOCKDOWNS. There were no knockdowns in a fight that Charnley won quite easily, throwing five punches to one, but still failing to put down the tough American for a count.

RANDOLPH TURPIN TURNS WRESTLER

By DEREK JOHN

There was a familiar ring to the name which blared from a London hoarding. Randolph Turpin—boxing a wrestler. Yes, the same Randolph Turpin who ten years ago thrilled millions of boxing fans by grabbing the World middleweight title from Sugar Ray Robinson in London.

Since that day Turpin's fortunes have taken a tumble. After he gave up boxing in 1958 to become in turn an employee of a scrap-metal firm and a cook—but the wrestling gimmick seems the unhappy

Randall, now, a thickening 33, earned a reputed £270,000 for the return bout with Robinson in New York 64 days after his title win.

He began boxing professionally in 1946, going on to have more than 70 fights and winning world, European, British and Empire titles in the process. He earned at least £150,000 during that period.

But somehow, Turpin's cash dwindled. "Earnings are never quite what they seem," he once said. "A quarter of everything goes to my manager. There have been all sorts of expenses. I lent various people quite large sums of money and they never repaid me."

Financial decline

Demands from the income tax authorities speeded up Turpin's financial decline.

Turpin, son of a merchant seaman from British Guiana, has two brothers who were in the ring—Gordon—Dick—and Jackie. One thing haunted him until he gave up boxing—the deafness he had as a child.

At 60, Turpin still wrestles. Turpin has spent a lifetime competing and sparring with Terry Bowden before the London boy met and beat Pat Fenlon for the heavyweight championship that Turpin won in 1951.

Shunning protective headgear, Turpin gave Bowden an example of his past powers with three jolting lefts that wore hardly anything.

But Bowden will readily agree, mixing it with the old champion paid off handsomely.

For handicapped BONN GOVERNMENT GIVES $75,000 TO LOCAL CHARITY

A sum of $75,000 has been donated by the Bonn Government to the Hongkong Catholic Welfare Committee, it was revealed today by a spokesman of the Consulate-General of the Federal Republic of Germany.

On August 31, the Bonn Government had given $100,000 for the work of the Ebenezer Home for the Blind.

The spokesman said that the money would be used to establish a weaving and knitting school for physically handicapped refugees, especially children.

He added that the purpose of establishing such a school was to prepare the physically handicapped to find jobs for themselves so that they can become self-supporting.

PRESENTATION

The projected school will be established at the Catholic Social Centre in Aberdeen.

Dr Hans H. Schirmer, Consul-General for the Federal Republic of Germany, will hand the money to the Catholic Welfare Committee on behalf of the Bonn Government as soon as the money is received in Hongkong.

2,250 born,
362 die

A total of 2,250 births were registered in the Colony during the week ending on August 26, Government health figures show.

Of these births, 600 were in Hongkong, 1,281 in Kowloon and 303 in the New Territories.

At the same time, figures show that there were 362 deaths from all causes.

Forty-two deaths were caused by infectious diseases in the same period, as compared with the same number in the previous week. Of the total, 30 deaths were from tuberculosis, two from cerebrovascular meningitis and one from polio.

In the same period, 328 fresh cases of tuberculosis were notified, bringing to 7,809 the total number of tuberculosis cases reported since the beginning of the year.

Rotor Movement

Designed for rapid winding: after only a few hours on your wrist the mainspring is fully wound. Take it off and it continues to run for 45 hours. These fine watches possess great immunity against shocks and jolts — as the balance wheel oscillates at 19,200 per hour, or 10% above normal watch movements. It is the principle of the fast-spinning gyroscopes used as stabilisers in ships and planes.
